

From January, 2019 our litigation team will operate as a separate practice group. When forming this practice we relied on the routine and expertise gained through our market-leading tax litigation practice as well as on the experience and knowledge we have acquired in civil lawsuits conducted in the past years. "We find that the new Civil Procedure Code, which came into force last January, creates a level playing field among attorneys: it does not really matter anymore how many years of experience someone has, but rather who can adapt to the new laws."

At the same time, we are also proud to announce an organizational change: our attorney Tamás Fehér will continue his career as a partner of Jalsovszky. Being a tax and a litigation specialist, Tamás will also be responsible for supervising and directing our new litigation team. "When I interviewed Tamás four years ago, I saw not only a capable tax professional in Tamás, but also someone with exceptional social values. I am glad that he has been able to develop his skills further with us, and to become one of the leading lights of the firm. I am confident that he will also manage the challenges of his new position with finesse."
